Securing the cutting process: an essential requirement

The VectorTechTex FX 100 meets rigorous safety criteria. It is perfectly adapted to the safety requirements that professionals in industrial fabrics and composite materials face. It reduces the hazards created by certain materials used. In particular, it integrates a new feature: a dust extraction system that captures the dust produced during cutting, greatly reducing the dispersal of particles that may be harmful to operators and limiting the impact on both the environment and the equipment.
